

The exclusive interview

is conducted for

Daily Bugle Communications

by rookie reporter

Mary Jane Watson...

Mary Jane.

By Mary Watson.

By Jane Watson.

By MJ Wat...

hmm...

I think I'll just stick with Mary Jane Watson.

[MJ] So, Peter Parker,

what does the man
on the street think?

What's to think? Heh, you're interviewing Spider-Man?

Spidey would have to be a bigger fan of yours than I am.

I believe you, MJ.

That's awesome.

But how did you get Spider-Man to agree to an interview?

[MJ] I can't reveal my sources, Harry.

Yeah, Parker.
How did she get it?

[Spider-Man] So how long have you wanted to be a reporter?

Uh, forever. But I don't know why I'm answering your questions.

You're the one who agreed to be interviewed.

My audience wants to know.
Why now? Why me?

It's important for your friendly neighborhood superhero

to know the top media movers and shakers.

Speaking of which...

[screams]

[breathless] That was amazing.

- It was like...

- Flying?

[MJ] Your voice sounds familiar,
but I can't quite place it.

Are you a public figure in real life?

[disguised voice]

This is my real life.

[MJ] You know it's not much of a

Any chance you'll give me
the ultimate scoop and unmask?

Sure.

Ta-da!

[MJ] Cute.

But winning The Bugle's

"You are the News" contest could be a huge break for me, so thanks.

Hey, there's something

...finally getting an unbiased source to prove

I'm not the menace
some people claim I am.

...and that's why I'm turning my airwaves over to you, Manhattan! You find the proof.

You bring me the video that will lock this spider-threat up once and for all!

You are the news!

Three words:
nose hair trimmer.

[clicking]

You don't think I'm a menace, do you?

[MJ] Uh, Spider-Man?

What? Am I lit badly?

Because my spidey-sense is really pinging now.

[groans]
